

URBAN&CIVIC PLC (“the Company” or “Urban&Civic”)

Annual Modern Slavery Statement

Urban&Civic plc and all companies within its group of companies are committed to tackling the risks of modern slavery, both within the business and throughout its supply chains. We recognise the need to operate to the highest standards morally, ethically and lawfully across all the work we do and in all our business dealings and relationships. We expect those we work with to uphold our standards within their own operations.

This statement is a combined group statement on behalf of both Urban&Civic plc and its subsidiary companies (a list of which is attached) and is made pursuant to our obligations under the Modern Slavery Act 2015 in respect of the financial year ending 30 September 2023. It was approved by our Directors on 6 December 2023.

Our Structure

Urban&Civic plc is a UK based property development and investment company registered in Scotland (registration number: SC149799), with approximately 75 subsidiary companies throughout the UK. The total number of direct employees of the Urban&Civic group is currently 119. Urban&Civic is owned by the Wellcome Trust, registered with the Charity Commission (registered number 210183).

Our Business Model and Stakeholders

Urban&Civic is the leading Master Developer of large-scale strategic sites in the UK, undertaking responsibility for obtaining planning and delivering the sustainable green, grey and community infrastructure to establish high quality, sustainable and community focused residential-led sites. We work with a range of national and small and medium sized housebuilders and housing associations to bring forward high quality homes across our sites using broad spectrum of contractors, consultants and utility providers at various stages of the Master Developer process. Additionally, Group operations include land promotion activities, commercial development and farming.

As a business we passionately believe in the importance of ongoing engagement; not only with our customers, contractors, consultants and utility providers, but also with our partners and the local communities in which we operate. We have regular and real time dialogue to ensure stakeholders are fully appraised of ongoing activities and project and corporate objectives and we seek to put in place contractual arrangements and obligations, where appropriate, to reinforce these project and corporate objectives. For example, in many of our contracts with housebuilders, contractors or other customers, we include “jobs brokerage” provisions so as to support local people into work within their respective operations. This collaborative approach helps us to leverage our combined involvement to promote not only employment and training, but also promote higher standards and a sense of fair play.

We currently have eight strategic sites in delivery and three in planning, 63 active land promotions, two active commercial sites and two farms of scale.

Our Employees

The risk of modern slavery or human trafficking in the recruitment and engagement of Urban&Civic employees is considered to be low, based on a risk assessment which took into account factors such as the Company's size, operational locations and the nature of our workforce. We have Human Resource processes in place to ensure that recruitment and onboarding is completed in line with regulatory requirements and our employees are supported by a number of legally compliant policies and practices which support a high standard of working conditions and a quality employment experience. Urban&Civic are a Living Wage and London Living Wage employer.

The Company has a well-established Employee Advisory Group (the "EAG"), a representative body made up of members from across the Company to help ensure employee interests, needs and concerns are represented to the Board and Executive Management Committee, resulting in actionable insights on employment matters.

Our Supply Chains

Urban&Civic engages a range of suppliers and third parties to design and deliver construction and other services. Our direct construction contracts or farming contracts may also require our contractors to use subcontractors to assist in the delivery of their contractual obligations.

We acknowledge that the industries in which we operate, and generate financial gain from, are deemed to have an elevated risk of modern slavery, particularly given the often-complex supply chains, lack of visibility around certain subcontracting processes and employment of low-skilled temporary workers.

Given these characteristics, we consider people within our supply chains to be at higher risk than our own employees, although we continue to mitigate this risk through select policies and procedures and due diligence (during the supplier onboarding process), as detailed below.

Our Policies and Procedures

We have a number of policies and procedures which reflect our commitment to acting properly in all our business relationships and which seek to implement and enforce effective systems and controls.

Our key policies and procedures, which support fair and ethical treatment and contribute to minimising the risk of modern slavery and human trafficking in our organisation and supply chain include:

- Anti-Corruption & Bribery – designed to ensure that Urban&Civic upholds the highest standards of professional integrity;
- Anti-Facilitation of Tax Evasion – designed to support Urban&Civic's commitment to acting professionally, fairly and with integrity in all its dealings and relationships and to implement and enforce effective systems to counter tax evasion facilitation;

- Bullying & Harassment – designed to help ensure that all of Urban&Civic’s employees and anyone we work with is treated with fairness, dignity and respect;
- Diversity & Equal Opportunities – designed to support a working environment that fosters fairness, equity and respect for social and cultural diversity and promotes equality in all that Urban&Civic do;
- Ethical Labour – designed to confirm fundamental expectations in respect of conduct for anyone working for or on behalf of Urban&Civic to promote the protection of human rights;
- Health & Wellbeing – designed to ensure the positive wellbeing of our employees.
- Health & Safety – designed to support Urban&Civic’s approach to H&S and our commitment to working practices that influence strong safety performance and compliance;
- Risk Management – designed to keep all business activities compliant with applicable laws, regulations and codes of governance.
- Whistleblowing – designed to support employees in reporting any concerns of unethical behaviour.

All our policies are reviewed annually by HR and then by either our Executive Management Committee and our Board before circulation to all employees. This ensures compliance with both legislative changes and best practice.

Our policies confirm our commitment to tackle the risks of modern slavery and human trafficking in our business and supply chain. We remain committed to acting ethically and with integrity, maintaining systems and controls that are designed to prevent modern slavery and human trafficking from taking place in our business or across our supply chains.

Our Due Diligence Processes

As part of our commitment to identify and mitigate the risk of modern slavery and human trafficking, we have put in place the following controls and processes:

- With respect to our main contractors, we operate a relatively small list of preferred contractors, which allows us to:
 - have a deeper understanding of those contractors and their labour practices,
 - influence their policies and attitudes to their own supply chain in this area, and
 - reinforce our values in respect of modern slavery and human trafficking.
- We actively communicate our ethical standard to our all suppliers via our onboarding processes, contracts and policies.
- All material strategic site contractors and consultants must complete a Pre-Qualification Questionnaire (PQQ) in order to be considered for preferred status. The PQQ has a number of questions dedicated to modern slavery, which seeks to provide Urban&Civic with a greater knowledge of the third party’s own supply chain and the steps they have put in place to encourage responsible behaviour and practices, including their own due diligence processes. We are currently in the process of ensuring wider compliance by our housebuilder customers.
- We operate a tendering and contractual documentation process that requires contractors to maintain records that trace their supply chain for all direct and subcontract labour and requires them to implement an annual audit process of these records. These processes also give Urban&Civic the right to request statements of compliance and demonstration of adherence to the contractual requirements with regard to all matters concerning modern slavery. The processes also require relevant training for employees and their supply chain and also requires the implementation of a planned course of action for their employees in response to actual or suspected instances of modern slavery.

- We put in place contracts that explicitly require our contractors, consultants and housebuilders to comply with Modern Slavery Act obligations and every contract appends our Ethical Labour Policy, legally binding our counterparties to compliance including in reference to the national living wage.
- We monitor and update our preferred contractor list on a monthly basis and our preferred consultant list is reviewed quarterly.
- We monitor contracts with contractors, consultants and housebuilders relating to obligations with respect to modern slavery and which was identified as a further step in our previous statement.

Training

We try to ensure that adequate information and training is provided to all employees on the importance of ethical business conduct.

- On joining the Company, every employee undergoes an induction process that outlines Urban&Civic's expectations around working relationships and how these must be based on high standards of personal and professional ethics.
- All employees are made aware of the Company's policies (as outlined above) as part of their induction which they must read and accept the requirements of during the period of their probation. Employees are made aware when new versions of any policies are made available and they must also sign an annual declaration which asks them to confirm that they have upheld and complied with the provisions of these policies and that there have been no breaches or potential breaches for which a declaration ought to have been made.
- Every employee at Urban&Civic is required to complete mandatory training modules through our online learning platform on modern slavery, whistleblowing and bullying and harassment. All employees must complete this training as part of onboarding and biannually thereafter. These modules include a testing element to ensure employee understanding of the risks involved and the legal requirements for businesses.
- We hold discussions (at site-based consortia meetings) with our contractors and housebuilder customers on their (and our) modern slavery policies and procedures at least on an annual basis.

Further steps

As part of our commitment to tackle the risks of modern slavery and to ensure that we continue to reinforce our approach of doing so, we intend to further build on the processes we have put in place already and as outlined in this statement.

- Extend the due diligence requirements identified in our tendering and contractual documentation process to both contract farming and tenancy arrangements.
- Create an appropriate process to request compliance from contractors, consultants, customers (including housebuilder customers) and tenants with the Group's Supply Chain Ethical Labour Policy.

- Update the Ethical Labour policy to include wider commitments as to the ethical labour standards we require our contractors, consultants, housebuilders, suppliers and tenants to achieve. This will include prohibitions around child labour.
- Look to incorporate the Ethical Labour Policy (along with other policies) into a wider Code of Conduct that sets out the Company's obligations on its suppliers on these matters and aim to build compliance with this Code into existing practices and procedures.
- Build on the current data gathering from our contractors, consultants, customers and tenants to provide annual declarations that they continue to comply with Urban&Civic's requirements in respect of modern slavery.
- Identify further opportunities for enhanced employee awareness training on modern slavery. There are certain teams and employees who by the nature of their role should receive more enhanced training.
- Look at ways in which we can build further employee engagement on modern slavery and consider how we can best use our communication channels (including Learning and Development offerings) to help support this.
- Explore possible partnerships with organisations committed to tackling modern slavery who can advise on and help develop a best practice approach.
- Look at our supplier screening process beyond its current focus on consultants, contractors and housebuilders and look to how we procure other services in the business and the due diligence process.
- Engage with local police forces to provide briefings to consortia meetings (to raise awareness of issues relating to modern slavery).
- We will update our next statement where further steps have been achieved or to provide a progress update.
